INTRODUCTION

The Future Project has a simple mandate—to build empowered citizens across Africa, through (inclusive) enterprise and (active) citizenship. This focus on Human Capital Development is informed by our value proposition: Africa’s growth needs a generation of young people who are gainfully employed and able to demand better leadership.

This quarter, one of TFP’s goal is to train the young people through our structured trainings (Online and offline). Projects held this quarter includes Aiki.ng, an employability portal resented with Microsoft; Code2earn, TFP Volunteer Environmental Sustainability (Celebration of Children’s day), The Future Enterprise Support Scheme and African Citizenship School.

Targeting primarily young people between the ages of 16 to 40 years, TFP is guided by a Strategic Plan from which it derives its annual and quarterly work-plan. This report therefore highlights implementation reports comprising overview of implemented activities and results achieved for the second quarter which will lead us towards achieving our goal for 2016.

Founded by Chude Jideonwo and Adebola Williams, TFP is supervised by a Global Board of Advisors drawn from Africa, Europe, North America and the Middle East.

2.0.2 Governance and Leadership

The goal of TFP's governance and leadership programming is to ensure young people are adequately informed and are equipped with decision-making skills. In facilitating achievement of the goal, the organisation recognises the importance of identifying with and celebrating young people already demonstrating remarkable leadership skills in their chosen field and also achieving results. The program also focuses on facilitating young people's active, response and informed participation in governance in the country.

For this edition, TFAA alumni, Denrele Edun (winner TFAA Prize for Producer of the year 2007), Tolulope Sangosanya (winner TFAA Prize for Best Use of Advocacy 2010), and Ukinebo Dare (winner TFAA price for The Ford Foundation Prize for Youth Employment); were present to share insightful and thought provoking words with the students.
